

Oxford Fire Station

Fire Station

Oxford, MS

Fowler Engineering provided structural engineering services for the new fire station in Oxford, MS. A concrete foundation was utilized to support insulated concrete form walls, a hollow core precast concrete 2nd floor, and structural insulated panels for the roof. The hi-bay engine room was constructed with concrete masonry unit walls and a steel bar joist roof structure.

Architect: Howorth & Associates

Top: Interior Photo

Bottom: Exterior Photo

